OVID link to Eloquent WebLibrary™

August 2004

Eloquent customers and their clients are now able to search for journal issues on the Ovid database and with a simple mouse click on any of the items see if they have the journal in their own library. Then they can request the issue from their own library rather than from Ovid.

The technical teams at Ovid and Eloquent worked together with Janice Russell, Library Systems Analyst, with the Niagara Health System to implement this convenient enhancement. For more details about this feature please read the PDF report written by Janice Russell.
